Gard Statement on Slavery and Human Trafficking 2023

"Together, we enable sustainable maritime development"

The above mission statement is actively pursued by Gard through its support for the UN Global Compact for Sustainable Development \(the "Compact"\). In doing so, Gard reconfirms its commitment to respect human rights and promote labour rights through our value chain and our operations in accordance with:

- Principle 4 of the Compact – the elimination of all forms of forced and compulsory labour, and
- Sustainable Development Goal 8 – promotion of inclusive and sustainable economic growth, full and productive employment and decent work for all.

Our core values - FAIR

Our core values are enshrined in our business philosophy. They guide all parts of the Gard organisation, irrespective of role, in the performance of our work. Fairness and equity form the foundation of Gard's business activities, now and in the future.

FAIR

- Friendliness
- Adaptability
- Integrity and
- Result orientated

In line with these values, Gard supports international efforts to promote ethical principles and practices related to the prevention of the exploitation and abuse associated with modern slavery and human trafficking. We are committed to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships, and to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to ensure slavery and human trafficking do not take place anywhere in our supply chains. We demand and expect the same commitment from all our suppliers and business partners.

Supply chains

Gard's supply chains fall into two main categories –

- i) professional - shipping/insurance industry related services, for example brokers, lawyers, surveyors, local shipping correspondents and other marine investigators.
- ii) operational - services to maintain the businesses, for example ICT support, on site /off site contractors, office services, supplies and support.

Reducing the risk

Due to the nature of Gard's business and its supply chains, the risk of modern slavery and human trafficking within those supply chains is considered low. However, Gard has taken a number of steps over the years to limit the risk and these have been noted in previous statements. More recently however Gard has re-assessed its processes and taken necessary actions in response to the Norwegian Transparency Act (Åpenhetsloven). This legislation, implemented in July 2022, requires an enterprise to conduct a due diligence assessment to identify and assess actual and potential adverse impacts on fundamental human rights and decent working conditions that the enterprise has either caused or contributed toward, or that are directly linked with the enterprise's operations, products or services via the supply chain or business partners.

Steps taken during 2022

Gard has enhanced its human rights due diligence process in respect of suppliers and business partners in all areas of Gard's business, including suppliers of office equipment, correspondents, lawyers, surveyors, and reinsurers. These suppliers undergo screening and assessment in respect of any impact on human rights.

The screening of suppliers is based on a range of risk factors and best practices set out in the OECD Guidelines on Multinational Enterprises and the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business Human Rights. Gard's Code of ethics and Business conduct has been updated in line with these guiding principles. 89% of our Correspondents have signed our Supplier Code of Conduct.

Gard has received a Gold Rating from the business sustainability rating agency EcoVadis in recognition of Gard's collective efforts in integrating environmental, social, and governance principles into its business operations.

Gard has developed a Human Rights Awareness Course for Gard all employees.

The year ahead

In order to evaluate current processes, Gard aims to develop performance indicators to monitor and measure elements in our operations which may impact on human rights. These performance indicators aim to measure the direct impact of the Gard's operations and the efficiency of any management processes that influence performance.

Gard shall continue with its due diligence work and maintain its ongoing collaboration with its suppliers and business partners in working with their improvement areas and in monitoring
